Item 4 – Advisory Business

Passive Capital Management, LLC (“the Adviser”) has been in business since 2007. The principal owners are Scott D. Reinhardt and Jonathan E. Farber.

Assets Under Management

As of December, 31, 2020, the Adviser managed $687,300,000 in client assets broken down as follows:

Discretionary $671,896,000

Non-Discretionary $15,404,000

Investment Management Services

The Adviser provides investment management services to its clients on a discretionary and non-discretionary basis.

Discretionary Services

Discretionary services consist of constructing portfolios to achieve established risk objectives. Portfolios include various funds, primarily passively managed index and asset class funds, designed to achieve competitive returns while attempting to minimize costs and capture the returns provided by the capital markets. The portfolio would generally be rebalanced quarterly to reflect previous commitments to each market/asset class.

When the Adviser manages client assets on a discretionary basis, the Adviser executes securities transactions for clients without having to obtain specific client consent prior to each transaction. Discretionary authority is limited to investments within clients’ managed accounts.

Non-discretionary Services

Non-discretionary services consist of establishing long-term investment policies, making recommendations regarding portfolio construction and security selection, implementation as directed by the client, and measuring and monitoring results.

When the Adviser manages client assets on a non-discretionary basis, the Adviser notifies the client and obtains permission prior to the sale or purchase of each security within the client’s managed account. Clients may decide not to invest in certain securities or types of securities and refuse to approve securities transactions.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

The Adviser is compensated for investment management services based on clients’ assets under management. Fees are based on the market value of assets on the last business day of the preceding quarter, are payable quarterly in arrears and are prorated for accounts opened during the quarter.

Fees are negotiable when an Investment Adviser Representative had a relationship with a client through a previous employer. If a client was subject to lower fee breakpoints, a fee schedule similar to the fee schedule that was in effect with the previous employer may be negotiated. The Adviser may also negotiate fees based upon additional business opportunities, family relationships and other factors.

- 0.80% of the initial $1,000,000
- 0.60% of the next $4,000,000
- 0.40% on the next $5,000,000
- 0.20% on amounts over $10,000,000

The account custodian may charge fees, which are in addition to and separate from advisory fees. Custodians may charge accounts for transaction, retirement plan and administration fees. Mutual funds have annual expenses and may assess other fees, which are described in each fund's prospectus. Advisory clients should note that fees for comparable services vary and lower or higher fees for comparable services may be available from other sources.

Termination

Clients will have a period of five (5) business days from the date of signing an advisory agreement to unconditionally rescind the agreement and receive a full refund of all fees. Thereafter, either party may terminate the advisory agreement at any time.

Since fees are payable after services are provided, there are no unearned fees and the client is not due a refund upon early termination of an investment advisory contract. However, the Adviser's fees are prorated to the date of termination.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

The Adviser does not charge or receive, directly or indirectly, any performance-based fees.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

The Adviser provides advisory services to:

- Individuals, including their trusts, estates, 401(k) plans and IRAs and those of their family members
- High net worth individuals – An individual who is a "qualified client" under rule 205-3 of the Advisers Act of 1940 or is a "qualified purchaser".
- Business entities including corporations
- Pension and profit sharing plans (other than plan participants)
- Charitable or nonprofit organizations – This may include social welfare organizations, agricultural/horticultural organizations, labor organizations, business leagues or trade associations and entities that operate for purposes that are religious, artistic, literary, charitable, scientific, educational or in the interest of public safety.

Account Minimums

The Adviser does not impose a minimum account requirement on clients.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

The Adviser believes:

- Capital markets and asset classes generate returns
- Asset allocation is the primary determinant of the variability in performance
- Markets are generally efficient
- Expected returns are a function of systematic risk
- Diversification is critical

The Adviser doesn't try to outsmart the collective wisdom of the markets or predict the future as the Adviser believes that these are oftentimes futile endeavors. The Adviser constructs portfolios with passively-managed investment products. The strategy is to gain exposure to asset classes in a cost-effective manner by attempting to minimize trading commissions, taxes and market-timing penalties.

The primary method of analysis consists of the review of past results from various portfolios compared to what was available in domestic and international capital markets as represented in published indices and various asset classes. The analysis includes the measurement and integration of investment goals and objectives with what can be expected from well-functioning capital markets. The Adviser uses passive investment vehicles to capture the risk/return from various asset classes; the allocation is determined by the individual client's goals, objectives, and risk tolerance.

The primary source of information consists of published data on returns from various indices and asset classes that represent components of domestic and international capital markets. Other sources of information include specific results of active investment managers and data from proprietary databases.

The investment strategy consists of allocating funds among several diversified financial asset portfolios designed to replicate specific markets/asset classes to meet specific risk objectives. Important to this strategy is the periodic measurement of results to ensure these objectives are being achieved. In sum, the Adviser adheres to a disciplined asset allocation philosophy.
